AEDP For Couples: Transforming Interlocking Relational Trauma Through Falling Freshly in Love

Presenter: David Mars, Ph.D., Senior Faculty of the AEDP Institute

October 19-20, 2018 (Friday, Saturday)

This workshop is approved for 14.0 Advanced Domestic Violence Education Hours.

Join us October 19-20, 2018 for this unique two-day intensive in Accelerated Experiential Dynamic Psychotherapy (AEDP, developed by Dr. Diana Fosha). AEDP For Couples is a comprehensive, integrative, theoretical, and clinical model offering new skills to heal multi-generational patterns of rage, anxiety, dissociation, and infidelity. Through clinical videos, lecture, and demonstration, Dr. Mars will focus on healing attachment trauma in the couple dynamic as well as within each individual and illustrate how the "felt experience" of love can be a key change agent in couples treatment.

You will learn to:

- Generate the secure base required for transformative couple treatment
- Develop more somatic attunement with your couples and clients
- Discover an Early Warning System to affectively regulate challenging couple members
- Expand your own window of affect tolerance when dealing with Dorsal Vagal Response
- Resolve shame about what each couple member has done and what each was helpless to prevent being done to them historically and within the relationship
